ONE OF TWO. Big Don McKelvy pulled this aerial in despite efforts of a Titusville defense man to score Warren's first TD in Saturday's 39-12 homecoming loss at War Memorial Field. Corry Coach Lou Hanna and staff are standing to left of players briefing up for the Beaver-Rocket game Oct. 18.

REFLECTIONS. Amateur photographers are finding the United Refinery photogenic. And on a bright day it offers great color possibilities from the river road side of the stream. The new tanks and their protective wall are doubled up by the bright sunshine and mirroring water.

ABOUT YOUR INSURANCE

The most important auto insurance to have is 'liability' to cover an award of $5,000 — $20,000, even $50,000, in case I injure or kill someone. But what about personal injury to myself or passengers? Would 'medical payments' insurance cover medical, hospital, or funeral expenses and cost only about $10?

ECONOMIZE DEFENSE?

A press release this week announced that several thousand soldiers were being discharged from the service to effect economy. Certainly this is not the measure by which we determine the size of our army or the amount of our equipment?

How can you economize defense, except through efficiency? You either need a man, or a tank, or a rifle, or he or it is excess. If you don't need them, that in itself is the obvious reason. If you do need them, it is not economy.

In fact we cannot be too concerned if there is a mite of surplus where the national safety is concerned. There will be no economy about which to worry if our defense is insufficient.

This is not to say that we oppose the reduction in our forces. We suspect it may be overdue. But why not tell the people the real reason. Have we progressed mechanically to the point where a huge army is not required? Have we entered a war era which outdates the man mass and demands highly skilled, smaller groups? The public is entitled to know.

We have contended for many years that our induction procedure is unrealistic. The young men of America have been kept in a state of uncertainty through the most vital period of their lives. The plan constantly is being changed, or there is talk of change, with the result that millions of boys are not sure what to do with those years immediately following high school.

The two-year training plan is ridiculous and unnecessary. Six months would be plenty time in which to provide a man with basic training. No matter how much you pour into him the average man will have been a civilian for several years following his training before he is called into service for the real thing. Equipment will have changed and he will need new training. His six months of original basic can be refreshed in a few weeks.

In fact, a realistic program would provide us with an adequate army and at the same time provide us some answers for other problems that are facing our young people and our nation. We see no reason for a draft law.

If the service were made sufficiently attractive to potential recruits the standing army would be sufficient without benefit of induction. Adequate pay and a sufficient pension system would uncover many men and women who are happy in jobs that provide life-time security. In fact many are serving out their time for that reason even as the system is set up today.

To attract more young men and women we could provide educational advantages that might also help solve our lack of trained people in various fields. This lack obviously is due to the inability of many to attend college. It certainly is a part of our defense to see that they do.

Why not give a man or woman as many years of college as he or she serves in the army, navy, marines, or air corps, with a limit of six for those who choose a profession which requires that much.

Most would not find it necessary to go more than two. With two years of college assured them at no cost they could put enough away during their two years of service and two years of college to take care of the next year. And during that year and the following summer they probably would find the means of financing their fourth.

Many who would enter the service with the thought of gaining scholarship credit would find the life satisfying and stay on as regulars. Between the choice of good pay and old age security and the financing of a college education there would be much to attract the young person. All would be able to make up their minds at high school age, and our economy and the morale of our younger population would be greatly enhanced.

Speaking selfishly as an employer we can assure you that any plan will be a major help which will enable the young people to decide what they want to do concerning job training, and will assure the employer that he is not wasting his time and money on a man or woman who may be jerked away from him months before the expected day. We have seen some boys called into service a week or two after they had been assured it would be months before their number would come up. And at the same time there would be others waiting around for months, unwilling to commit themselves to a permanent situation.

If the young of today are a bit confused it isn't surprising to us. The government's defense and educational plans are so lacking in soundness that none of us is sure of what next year, or even next month, will bring.

THE TAX PAY-OFF

Every time one of our taxing bodies runs into financial trouble we hear a review of the available taxes and much is said about the earned income, amusement, mercantile, and property transfer taxes, as compared and contrasted with the per capita. Maybe you would like to know what the experience of others has been in this field.

The best money maker of the group is the earned income tax. It brought in over $27 million in 1955. This is almost double the $14 million which the per capita tax yielded. Yet only a fifth the number used the earned income as did the per capita. On this basis, if all had used the earned income it would have produced over $100 million!

The number of cities, boroughs, townships and school districts using the per capita tax was 2,174. The number using the earned income was 419.

The property transfer tax was used by 395 and brought in a little over $7 million. The mercantile tax was used by 63 and earned nearly $5 million. The amusement tax was used by 349 and provided well over $3-1/2 million.

The big users of the per capita tax are the school districts, the boroughs, and second class townships. The earned income tax is used mostly by school districts and boroughs. The mercantile tax is popular with the cities, though more boroughs use it and several school boards. In the city the most used of these taxes is the amusement levy. Cities rate the per capita about fifth, topped by all those mentioned here, plus the mechanical device tax.

Putting it another way, a third of the cities use the amusement tax, while only a tenth use the per capita. Over a third of the boroughs use the per capita, and a sixth use the amusement. A fifth of them use the earned income tax.

Yet the earned income, which is far fairer than any of the others, and reaches more people in a fairer way, yields more money than the very inequitable head tax.

A borough the size of Warren could use the earned income tax to its fullest, eliminate the per capita tax and reduce its property assessments. Nearby boroughs and townships could do the same. And the tax could be divided between the school districts and the governing groups by common consent to the benefit of nearly every taxpayer.

QUIVERING STOCKS

We have two issues of the United States News and WorldReport which easily can be confused with each other. One is dated October 4, 1957. The other is October 12, 1956.

On the front page one asks the questions, "Why stock market is jittery." The other's front page has a question which reads, "Why the stock market is shaky." If this perennial occurrence continues the editors will have at least one easy article to prepare.

One of the major reasons for the quivering market given in both articles is the tight money policy of the government. Apparently this is a time which finds the administration annually worried about inflation, and the borrowing rates are jumped in an effort to discourage heavy financing of major projects.

This is not good for business. Add the foreign situation, last year it was Suez, and in both years it is the administration's foreign policy, and you come up with another reason for pessimism. The tightening of British and French credit to maintain the value of their currency also reduces the prospects of exports to those nations.

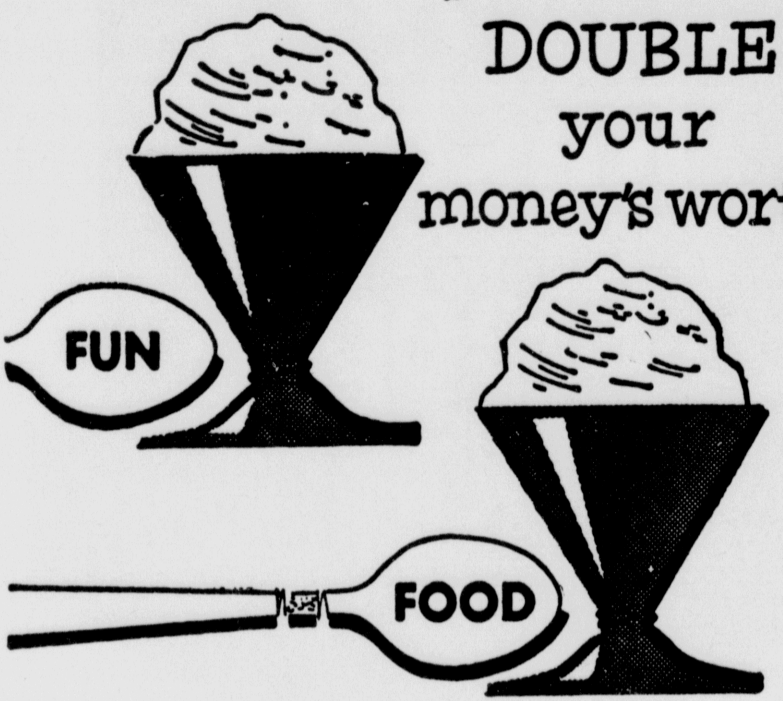

The stock market is so high that the rate of return is low considering the amount invested. Those dealing in common stocks are apt to hesitate about buying in the face of all this. And so the bearish results pull out the rug.

Will the government continue its tight money policy or will it ease the pressure as was the case last year? If it decides to ease the rates, you can be sure more business will develop and the stock market may do another dizzy climb.

However, there are many signs which are not suggestive of a 1958 which will compare with 1957. One may be found in the tooling industry where business is down. Companies which plan a big year should be tooling now for their 1958 products. Instead we find it very quiet on this score.

The auto industry is typical. Except for a splash about the new Proposing an amendment to article nine, section eight of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, increasing the borrowing capacity of school districts.

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby resolves as follows:

Section 1. The following amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is proposed in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof: That section eight, article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be amended to read:

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as provided herein, and in section fifteen of this article, shall never exceed seven (7) per centum, except school districts which shall never exceed fifteen (15) per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such county, municipality or district incur any debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two (2) per centum, except school districts which shall not exceed five (5) per centum, upon such assessed valuation of property, without the consent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law. The debt of the city of Philadelphia may be increased by said city so that the total debt of said city shall not exceed thirteen and one-half (13 1/2) per centum of the average of the annual assessed valuations of the taxable realty therein, during the ten years immediately preceding the year in which such increase is made, but said city shall not increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding three (3) per centum upon such average assessed valuation of realty, without the consent of the electors thereof at a public election held in such manner as shall be provided by law. The method of determining such indebtedness shall be as now provided, or as may hereafter be prescribed by the General Assembly.

In incurring indebtedness for any purpose the city of Philadelphia may issue its obligations maturing not later than fifty (50) years from the date thereof, with provision for a sinking fund to be in equal or graded annual or other periodical installments. SESSION OF 1957

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to article eight, section one of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, changing residence requirements.

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby resolves as follows:

Section 1. The following amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is proposed in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof: That section one, article eight of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be amended to read:

Edsel we have seen no advance campaign concerning new models. This suggests that most of them will see little basic change. There, of course, will be some exceptions.

The same goes for household appliances. We tipped you off months ago that the big change in television will be slim-lining. We now see some of this in current ads. But for the most part we expect to see more accessory and trim changes than basic.

Will the government money rates be lowered? Some of our Washington sources report that this decision has not been reached. It is claimed that there are some influential GOP backers, and no doubt some major Democrat contributors, who would like to continue the present squeeze with the hope of undermining labor's bargaining position.

The fact is that many heavy industry lines are in the same position as tooling. They are keeping men on because they expect business to come back and they don't want to lose their help. But if the government cracks down to the point where the curve upward does not develop we may see the heaviest unemployment in several years.

The auto industry, which is a major part of our economy, expects to sell many new cars in 1958 simply because it is aware of a large proportion of loans that will be paid off on models that are two or three years old. For this reason it may not feel it is necessary to make drastic changes in order to force sales on people who still are paying for the one they are driving. Many smart car buyers wait until a new model has gone through a year of production. Quality controls and refinements then follow the next year. If their financing plans fit that picture, they buy. This may be that kind of year for several major lines, such as the Chrysler and Ford makes. General Motors may go through its big year of experimental changes in basic design in a few cars but may not be ready for really drastic changes until 1959 or 1960. Ford actually is ordering most of the tooling.

There also is a strong possibility that there will be a reduction in war material purchases. With the cry out for economy and tax reduction, there is no richer and lush plum to shave than the defense budget. It is bound to be too fat, and with congressional investigations now underway, the efficiency of some phases in this area may make reductions feasible.

All of this affects wages, sales, stocks, bonds, and the little merchant. The big business interests can make the most of a boon or a mild recession. Especially if they have a part in planning them.

It is a good time to play it close to the vest.

upon a staggered basis of two years. The first appointment by the Governor shall be for a two-year period; the second appointment by the Governor, for a four-year period; the third appointment by the Governor shall be for a six-year period; and the fourth appointment by the Governor shall be for an eight-year period; and thereafter all appointments shall be for a period of eight years. No appointee shall hold any other public office.

Each vacancy shall be filled by the Governor and the Governor shall have authority to make recess appointments until the convening of the Senate. Excepting the initial appointments made for a period of less than eight years, no member shall be entitled to reappointment.

In all criminal cases except impeachment, the Governor shall have power to remit fines and forfeitures, to grant reprieves, commutations of sentence, and pardons; but no pardon shall be granted, nor sentence commuted, except upon the recommendation in writing of the Board of Pardons, or a majority of them, after full hearing upon due public notice, and in open session; and such recommendation with the reasons therefor at length shall be recorded and filed with the board in a docket kept for that purpose.

The General Assembly shall have power to regulate procedure before the Board of Pardons, and shall require it to keep records of its actions, and reasons therefor, which shall at all times be open for public inspection.

ASIDES

GOOD IDEA

We like the proposal that a special session of the Arkansas legislature be held. And its purpose should be the impeachment of the governor who has brought discredit down upon our entire nation.

WE ARE NOT OBSERVING

By what right did the Warren radio station announce this week that the Warren Observer is observing newspaper week? The very opposite is true.

We are very much opposed to the rash of weeks that have been created for breast beating and as advertising gimmicks, and make every effort to have as little to do with them as possible. In the case of newspaper week we have full choice in the matter.

If we were to have any part in this week we would suggest it be used by the nation's press to humbly examine itself. It has become big, too big, and dances tenderly along the lines established by the almighty advertising dollar.

The right of press freedom very much exists but is too little used. For the most part it is much misused by those who make a very lush living from its rich income.

The press has become a very common part of the mob of which Frank Lloyd Wright speaks so well. It represents competition at its worst, and there are few examples of courageous and original journalism to be found in this free nation today.

Our stereotyped press has little reason for a proud week. It is best forgotten until we have earned the right to be so honored. And then it should be at the hands of others and not through our own vain columns.

SPEAKING OF WRIGHT

Our reference to Frank Lloyd Wright suggests a bit of good reading we readily recommend. If the library has a copy of the September 17 issue of the Christian Science Monitor, the front page of the second section is devoted to an interview of Mr. Wright by Bernice Stevens Decker.

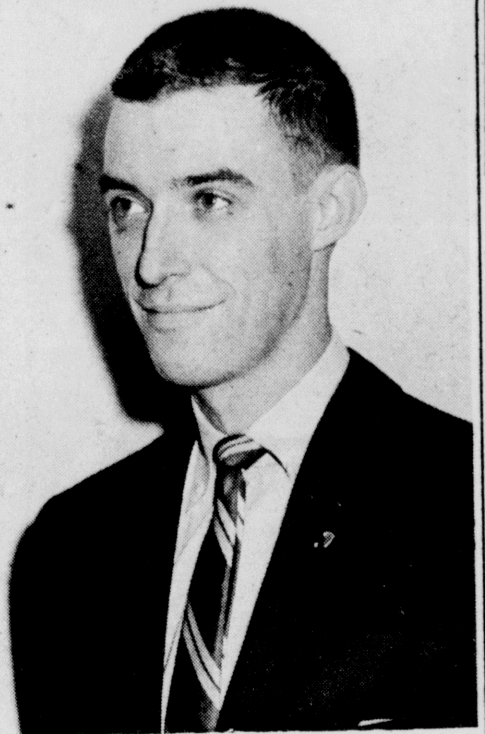

There has been much criticism of Mr. Wright because he speaks of the common man as not the ideal for which we must seek. But the man is right. You can find it in simple things such as so-called popular music, or leading figures in the theatre or on television. Because the average taste likes some of them they are called the best.

Such is not the case. Mr. Wright says, "Stay away from competition, it never gives the world anything worth having. The jury always is a picked average. It throws out the best and the worst, so that it can agree on an average, which is always mediocre. This is true in any competition, not architecture alone. The superior always battles the mediocre. Because the mediocre satisfies the most people, it usually wins out."

He also says, "Our forefathers intended a genuine aristocracy, not a common man. They intended us to be truly individual. Too much sentiment for the common man allows mediocrity to ride too high. The common man is a block to progress. We should strive to be uncommon. Democracy is founded on individual self improvement as the condition of freedom. Contagious fear and man's short-sighted interests keep him right where he is. The freedom of the individual as an individual is our dearest possession. It is only by discipline from within that man achieves true democracy."

Make you mad? Good! It might make you think. And we certainly need to think.

THESE ADULTS prepared and served the Sunday evening dinner to the CYC members.

WILLIAM M. HILL, JR., of Warren, was admitted to the Bar of Warren and Forest Counties as an attorney during court this week.

A native of Warren, he graduated from Warren high school, Dickinson College and the Dickinson School of Law. After his schooling was completed in June of 1954 Mr. Hill did his clerkship in the law offices of R. Pierson Eaton, Esq., with whom he will be associated in the practice of law.

He also served two years in the U. S. Army as a member of the Courts and Boards Staff of the 74th Regimental Combat Team.

LEAGUE RACE TIED

Titusville and Corry, each with 2 wins and 0 losses in league play, share the top spot in the race for Section II, District 10 honors this week. Third place is held by Meadville who won the only league game they have played. The three undefeated teams are followed by Franklin, 1 loss and 1 tie; Warren, 2 setbacks and 1 tie; and Oil City, 2 losses in league play.

AREA FOOTBALL ROUNDUP

WARREN COUNTY -- Youngsville was the only victorious county team last weekend. The Eagles beat Northern Area, 24 to 7. Warren was whipped by Titusville, 39 to 12, and St. Marys rocked Sheffield, 31 to 12.

SECTION II -- In league play Titusville whipped Warren, 39 to 12, and Meadville downed Franklin, 20 to 6. Oil City beat Grove City, 13 to 6, and Johnsonburg surprised Corry, 24 to 0. The latter two games have no effect on league standings.

OTHER WARREN OPPONENTS -- Bradford spanked Erie Academy, 33 to 13, and Kane dumped Emporium, 21 to 12. Jamestown suffered its second straight loss of the season, this week a 32 to 0 setback by Tonawanda.

AREA -- Erie Prep blanked Rochester Aquinas, 14 to 0, on Sunday. Millcreek edged Harborscreek, 21 to 18, Butler downed Farrell, 32 to 15, Warren, Ohio, blasted Snaron, 38 to 0, and North East bounced Lawrence Park, 34 to 0. Greenville edged Sharpville, 19 to 18.

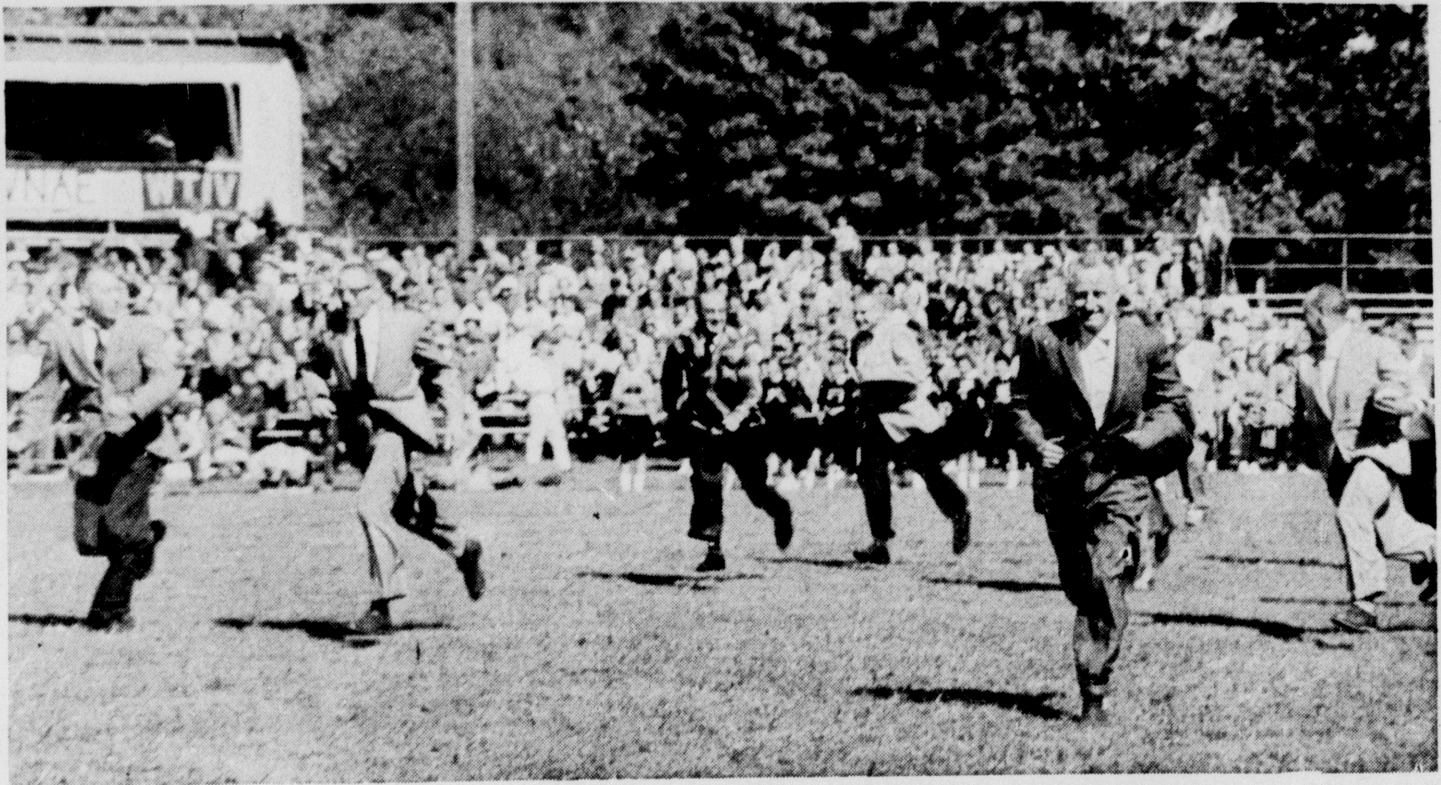

DAD AND SON WIN

In the recent .30 calibre rifle shoot for fathers and sons at Altoona, dad Roger and son Paul Mahaffy won the state championship trophy. The first endeavor for the title, the local pair fired a 466 out of a possible 500 score.

DRAGONS LOSE 39-12

The Dragons of Warren high, out maneuvered defensively and offensively, dropped a 39-12 contest to the Titusville Rockets before a nice homecoming crowd at War Memorial Field Saturday afternoon.

It was the second defeat against one tie since the locals opened the campaign.

INTERFERENCE WAS SLOW but Joe Massa (extreme right), high school director of athletics, scurried to the end zone to score for the homecoming team of 1927 on the one and only play.

QUEEN AND HER COURT. Homecoming Queen Joan Dunham and her court reigned over festivities at the Warren-Titusville game at War Memorial Field last Saturday afternoon.

After a scoreless first period both teams broke into the scoring column in the second stanza, the Rockets hitting first before Don McKelvey hauled in a 25-yard TD aerial from quarterback Lou Mascaro.

But the Rockets pulled no punches in the second half, tallying 10 points in the third and 13 in the finale. Warren's only other score came when Jack Suppa charged 55 yards into the end zone.

Key men in the Titusville offense were Ron Sampson, who galloped 60 and six yards, and Don Dewey's one and eight yard plunges across the line. Olsen and Allen scored on other plays.

This Saturday Coach Ralph Veight's Blue and White gridders tangle with another Section Two opponent in Oil City on the home gridiron. Game time, 1:30.

TUNING UP. Don Hendrickson Fox, and very dead. Don, who spotted this fox in the Leonhart Run area last Thursday and let out there for a buck during the special season.

TOO MUCH TOO LATE

At just about 10 p. m. Sunday night (EDT) "Crescendo" caught fire and from then on it roared on to a crackling and rousing finish.

This was the show about America's musical heritage and it was only during the last half hour which was devoted to spirituals, to the blues and (much too briefly) to our great musical comedy music, that I felt we had a heritage to cherish and to be proud of. The music in that last half hour pulsed and soared and carried you along with it.

But by then the show was an hour old and it was much, much too late. "Crescendo" was the first of Du Pont's "Show of the Month" programs which are ninety minutes long and have enormous budgets and ought to be encouraged. Heading the cast was Rex Harrison, a prize catch for any TV program, and he was assisted by an impressive roster which included Julie Andrews, Benny Goodman, Louis Armstrong, Diahann Carroll, Mahalia Jackson, Stubby Kaye, and a great many others. But despite all that talent -- or just possibly because of it -- "Crescendo" took forever to get off the ground.

 Among other things, it was overwhelmed by what I can only describe as pretentious simplicity. There were no settings; the dances were performed either on a bare floor or a plainly painted platform. Mr. Harrison did much of his performing on plain stools which were meant to represent respectively a hay wagon, a church pew, a train seat. This elimination of props and settings is altogether a fine idea; the talent is free to let itself loose, unfettered by confining walls or furniture.

But the trouble here was that the performers seemed more self-conscious than otherwise by the absence of the formal props. The reason, possibly, is that the script was a little too cute and fussy and stylized and -- well -- phoney. Mr. Harrison was cast as an Englishman come to our shores with all the preconceptions and misconceptions of the stage (as opposed to the real) Englishman and in the course of an hour and a half and a tour of our musical high spots in churches, jazz joints and the theater, he decides we are pretty nice people after all.

 That isn't at all a bad framework for a musical show on paper, but in practice it never quite came off. The show had its moments, all right. The dance numbers under the direction of Eugene Loring had great elegance and a sort of effortless grace. In color, the show had high polish and style. CBS uses color with simplicity and economy and stunning effect. Whole walls are simple white squares and against this are thrown dancers in black pants, white blouses and orange sashes. Visually, this gives the picture an uncluttered grace and sweep like a modern painting.

Individually, there were a great many things I thoroughly enjoyed. I liked Lizzie Miles singing "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey," which I haven't heard in years. The duet between Rex Harrison and Louis Armstrong on jazz from "High Society" was loads of fun. The revival meeting where Stubby Kaye sang "Sit Down You're Rockin' the Boat" from "Guys and Dolls" followed by Mahalia Jackson's singing of the spiritual "Didn't It Rain" was great. Armstrong's trumpet solo on "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen," the trumpet almost crying, was superb. And the musical comedy numbers -- Carol Channing singing "Diamonds Are a Girl's Best Friend," Stanley Holloway

Gloria Swanson

GLORIA SWANSON'S FASHION OF THE MONTH is a real buy, in addition to being a fashion investment. Rayon and acetate fabric emerges in the tiniest check of the season that everyone swears is wool. Coat dress with distinctive lines and a cross over tab was just made for your busy days. Grey, Brown, Plum, and Blue.

casually yours at $10.95

singing "Get Me to the Church on Time," Julie Andrews singing "Wouldn't It Be Lovely" -- were spirited and exciting.

 But in spite of these individual goodies, the show as a whole was exhausting and, in the end, tiresome. I don't know why exactly but I suspect that it contained too many people trying to cover too much ground. I rather think that if the show had had fewer people -- perhaps one pair of singers and a few dancers -- trying to cover the same amount of ground, it might have come off better. The Ethel Merman and Mary Martin duet of a few years back has never been forgotten.

Just the same I hope DuPont doesn't abandon its show of the month concept which is exciting and stimulating. Incidentally, the Du Pont commercials in color were eye-filling.

SEWAGE PLANT BIDS OPENED. The authority for the Warren Sewage Disposal Plant met Wednesday afternoon and opened low bids totaling $1,106,363 for construction of the proposed plant. The figure is about $80,000 less than the estimate given the authority by the Chester Engineers, who have already been engaged to work on the project.

The low bids entered (some may be rejected for technical reasons) were general construction, $595,322, Christopher Construction Co.; plumbing work, $10,451, Sands Corp.; electrical work, $30,365, Hull Electric; building heat work, $7,145, Commercial Construction Co.; sewer facilities, $144,615, Milano Construction Co.; sewage pump station no. 1 and station no. 2, $89,586 and $82,594 respectively, Keystone Construction Co.; creek crossing, two river crossings, Milano Construction Co., $146,285.

The new sewage plant is to be situated on the former Nubold property on Warren's South Side.

DON FINLEY'S SPORTING GOODS store in downtown Warren has been purchased by Giff Jones, former Warren resident who has been affiliated the past two years with Floridin Co. Always a popular spot for sports enthusiasts, the store was owned and operated by Don Finley, who died recently, for about the past 20 years.

Mr. Jones plans to open his new business, which will handle sporting goods only, this Friday.

AN IMPORTANT MEETING of the North Warren Civic Club is scheduled for 7:30 next Monday evening in the Community House. At this time the Television Corp. is scheduled to give an extensive report on the progress being made on the new TV translator system that has been installed.

Of three channels to be received over this system, only Channel 4 is being received to date.

GROUND WILL BE BROKEN in Warren this Friday as the Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania starts its program to bring the dial service system to this community in 1959. A part of the firm's two-million dollar program, the major addition in Warren will be to the company's central office building at 101 Pennsylvania ave., W.

The addition is necessary to provide for the replacement of the present manual office with a modern dial central office and will provide space for increased facilities for handling toll calls which will make Warren a through switching point for toll centers throughout this general area.

THE 1957 COMMUNITY CHEST campaign for $74,085 opens officially on Monday, October 14, but started this week in the industrial division.

Over 50 plants in Warren are being solicited and 16 of these have installed consolidated welfare funds for their employees, so the members of the latter will not be solicited in the drive.

The industrial division is one of the most important units in the Chest drive with a goal of about 55 per cent of the quota.

TWO GRAND VALLEY area men, whose arrest several weeks ago cleared up a series of camp burglaries in Warren and other nearby counties, were sentenced to two to five years in the penitentiary at Quarter Sessions court last week. They were Charles Richard Allen and Albert M. Robshaw, Jr.

In another case, John Inter was given a five day jail sentence and fined costs and $100 for drunken driving.

Divorces granted in court last week were in the cases of Ruth A. Canavan vs. John A. Canavan, Mary J. McCool vs. Fred L. McCool, John Fedorchuk vs. Janet Fedorchuk, John J. Maloney vs. Genevieve M. Maloney, Grace E. Heasley vs. Edward M. Heasley, Robert B. Lusk vs. Vivian Lusk, David J. Eberhart vs. Florence M. Eberhart, Anna Weaver vs. Paul R. Weaver.

DIDN'T STOP. Borough police arrested Delores J. Anthony, R. D. 1, Warren, for failing to observe a stop sign following a two-car accident at the intersection of Third and Water streets at 2:53 p.m. Saturday. About $400 damage also resulted when Arvilla J. Little, 48 Pennsylvania ave., E., Warren, struck the Anthony vehicle.

PARKED CARS were involved in three accidents that took place last Friday and Saturday. The first occurred at 1 a.m. Friday four miles west of Warren on Route 6 when a truck operated by Harry Rogers, Tiona, hit a car owned by Leslie Peterson, Kane, and caused minor damage.

On the next day at 12:10 p.m. near Tidioute cars parked by Raymond Winter, Pittsfield, and Robert Robinson, Vernon, Pa., were damaged to the extent of $700. This was caused when a car being hauled by a wrecker operated by Tony Leone, Kane, swung into the parked autos.

At 8:40 p.m., 12 miles north of Warren, Richard Iseman, Warren, smacked a parked car belonging to Larry Anderson, also of Warren, with $600 loss resulting.

A PLEASANTVILLE MAN was traveling north on Route 62 near Tidioute at 11:30 p.m. Monday when he lost control and piled his car up $1000 worth.

LAST FRIDAY cars operated by Floyd August, Titusville, and William Nobles, Pittsfield, collided just west of Warren on Route 6 when the former attempted to pass. He met with the oncoming Nobles' vehicle in the effort and caused $500 damage. No one was injured.

Near the same spot Tuesday afternoon Edith Mazzuca and George Henninger, both of Warren, side-swiped in a passing attempt costing $200.

And on Tuesday evening five miles east of Warren on the main route Irvine McGee, Kane, and Basil Mc-

Cann, Bradford, couldn't make it past each other without missing.

THREE MINOR ACCIDENTS were investigated by local police last night. All took place on Pennsylvania ave., E., and two of these at the intersection of Conewango ave.

ATTENDING THE STATE CONVENTION of the Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers in Philadelphia October 7-9 will be Mrs. Lyle Rulander, local council president; Mrs. Pauline Knowlton, East Street unit president; and Mrs. Helen Bunk, delegate from the Lacy unit.

TALKING ABOUT WEEKS. . . . the period of October 6-12 is Fire Prevention Week and International Letter Writing Week.

$150,000 Fire Destroys West Penn Oil Plant

The specialty oil compounding plant of the West Penn Oil company was completely destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon.

Flames broke out at the North Warren plant shortly after two o'clock and in less than a half hour the large building and about 20 storage tanks were engulfed in raging flames and clouds of black smoke.

Company officials estimated the loss to buildings and tanks early last evening at $150,000. No inventory of stock had been taken, but 500 thousand gallons of lubricating and industrial oil was being stored in the 800-thousand-gallon storage spaces. It was believed 19 of 20 tanks had been destroyed. A loaded railroad tank car near the loading rack of the plant was saved.

Nine persons, including plant superintendent Jack Culbertson, escaped from the building without injury.

Ed Barney, truck driver for Erie Trucking, was loading cartons into his trailer when he discovered the fire and sent out the alarm. North Warren and Warren departments were first to arrive at the scene, and other volunteers from the area responded shortly. But any efforts to save the 30-year-old plant were hopeless.

Southern Moderates May Prevail

By Marquis Childs

WASHINGTON. -- While the casualties in the Little Rock civil war are still unnumbered, the list is undoubtedly a long one, taking in sufferers far beyond the immediate battle area.

The question being asked here is the degree to which the Southern moderates have had the ground cut out from under them. This is a grave question for both the South and the North.

If they are all to be sacrificed as the South hardens in hostility under the leadership of embittered men such as Governor George B. Timmerman Jr. of South Carolina, then the present war between the states will spread and the consequences for the nation will be disastrous. The first gloomy reaction of the moderates is to believe that they will be cut down by the extremists if they do not quickly join up in a demagogic war dance.

But others are more hopeful. One of these is Representative Brooks Hays of Little Rock, who had the courage to step into the line of fire to try to save Governor Orval E. Faubus from his folly and to prevent the use of Federal troops.

That he failed is no reflection on his courageous effort to avoid the ultimate indignity, advertised to the world, of children kept in school and mobs kept out, thanks only to Federal bayonets. Hays continued to hope for successful mediation of the conflict until it became evident that Faubus had succumbed to political forces bent on exploiting the segregation issue.

Having recovered from the first crushing sense of defeat, he is now at least guardedly optimistic. He believes that in the wake of the shock of Little Rock the great mass of reasonable and moderate men and women in the South are fully aware that it is no longer a choice between integration and segregation but between order under law and anarchy, inviting the employment of Federal force.

A deeply religious man himself, Hays believes that church groups, which have for the most part taken a moderate stand in the integration dispute, will come to the fore. Church leaders have in many instances shown exceptional courage. This element, in Hays's hopeful view, can do much to bring the South back to reason and resist the call of the do-or-die Southerners who would fight it out on the barricades.

Schmader; and Jeannene Kohler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Kohler.

The loss of moderates, typified by men such as Hays, Representative Hale Boggs of Louisiana and Senators Lister Hill and John Sparkman of Alabama, would leave the field open to the bitter-enders opposing everything with even a suspicion of Northern approval or sponsorship. It would tend to confirm the growing isolationism of a large part of the South.

Senator Hill has set a remarkable record for fostering legislation in the field of social development and public welfare. In his hard, consistent work for the Tennessee Valley Authority and through the Hill-Burton bill for the construction of badly needed hospitals, he has contributed immeasurably to the well-being not only of his own region but the nation.

Equally important is his continuing effort to get Federal funds for medical research into such plagues as cancer, mental health and heart disease that are so costly in both lives and dollars. Thanks to Hill, the money available to the National Institute of Health, where this research is done, was increased at the last session of Congress.

Consistently through the years the Senator from Alabama has supported Federal aid to education. He was influential in bringing the late Senator Robert A. Taft around to the view that Federal help was essential if American children were not to be crowded out of a decent education.

Again and again Southern moderates have helped to rebuild the bridge that was utterly destroyed in the War Between the States nearly a century ago. They have worked to prove that the Mason and Dixon's line is not an impossible boundary between two hostile camps. And in developing ever-broader areas of cooperation, they have proved that it is one nation indivisible.

The hope of Brooks Hays and the moderates is that the mass of reasonable, sensible Southerners will come to see what the loss of this cooperation would mean. It would mean unquestionably a severe setback to the South, and common sense will weigh this against the emotional luxury of another parade with the bloody shirt.

Business May End Segregation

By Doris Fleenor

WASHINGTON. -- Despite Arkansas, President Eisenhower does not intend that the school integration struggle shall dominate his second term nor even the months immediately ahead.

His aides here are sounding the propaganda note: law and order. All that the President did in Little Rock, they explain, is to restore law and order. When that is firmly achieved, it is said that the troop will leave and the issue will be restored to the courts where it belongs.

In substance, this will be the President's story to the Southern Governors this week. His plan is to keep those discussions general in tone and he will refuse to become enmeshed in their separate problems.

Aides suggest that the Governors must face it: They are not going to be permitted to put their difficulties on the President's shoulders in any way, shape or form.

The President's prescription will not be wholly unpalatable to his guests, who were forced into making the request for a White House conference by events in Little Rock. They hope to make it appear that they were received warmly and sympathetically, but as one put it: "The less we hear about Federal action, the better for us."

At the end of the conference the Governors, of course, will be talking for home consumption. The President naturally will seek to play down the story nationally and above all, internationally.

In the President's favor are several factors. There is the moderate Southern leadership of Congress which also would like to detach itself from the issue. It does not echo White House optimism that oil can be poured on the troubled waters, but it is not an accident that there has been a minimum of Congressional comment now.

One legislative leader pointed out that every Supreme Court decision day will be a hazard. The court has two race cases before it, one involving the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the other, segregationist John Kasper.

In addition, it is expected to get on appeal this session a Federal court order to two major Virginia cities to integrate. They are Alexandria and Arlington, both a stone's throw from the capital itself. Virginia is viewed here as furnishing the real test of the Southern attitude.

The secret weapon working for integration is business. The increasing industrialization of the South is a major economic phenomena of the times; every Southern state, Arkansas included, is working overtime to attract new plants and new enterprises. These are largely national in scope and cannot afford, at least openly, to appear to cooperate with segregationists on any local front.

When the race issue became "bad for business," not just in the big Northern states but all over the South, many people felt it was on the way toward being solved. Business is bound to be a force working toward solution, either openly or in quiet.

In this connection it is noteworthy that the two leading figures of the just concluded Southern Governors Conference were from highly industrialized North Carolina (Gov. Luther Hodges) and Florida (Gov. Leroy Collins). Unquestionably in their calls for moderation these men had the business communities of their states behind them. This economic factor is relatively new in the picture and it is more important than the extremists who talk of third parties.

It's usually the eager beaver that makes enough money to buy mink.

GREETINGS — "Lonesome George" Gobel greets pretty Shirley Harmer, Canadian singer who will appear on the first "George Gobel Show" colorcast starring George Gobel and Eddie Fisher on NBC-TV Tuesday, Sept. 24.

BLISTERING. Burning oil and melting metal blend into an inferno as one of twenty tanks lets loose, within the depths of the West Penn smoke.

FOUR OF TWENTY. Nearly twenty tanks went up in the West Penn fire. Here four are seen withstanding the heat. But a few minutes later they were bursting and blazing with the rest. The tank capacity of 800,000 gallons was about sixty per cent in use at the time of the fire.

A CALM MOMENT. The smoke from the West Penn oil fire didn't rise straight up like this much of the time during the $150,000 fire Wednesday. A strong wind kept it sweeping dangerously toward nearby homes.

"Most of my widow friends had to sell their homes after their husbands died! Fortunately for me, my husband and I built up a savings account with high yearly earnings and I was able to maintain my standard of living. You can have the same security too, by opening your savings account this very day!"

SOUND! SAFE! SECURE SAVINGS

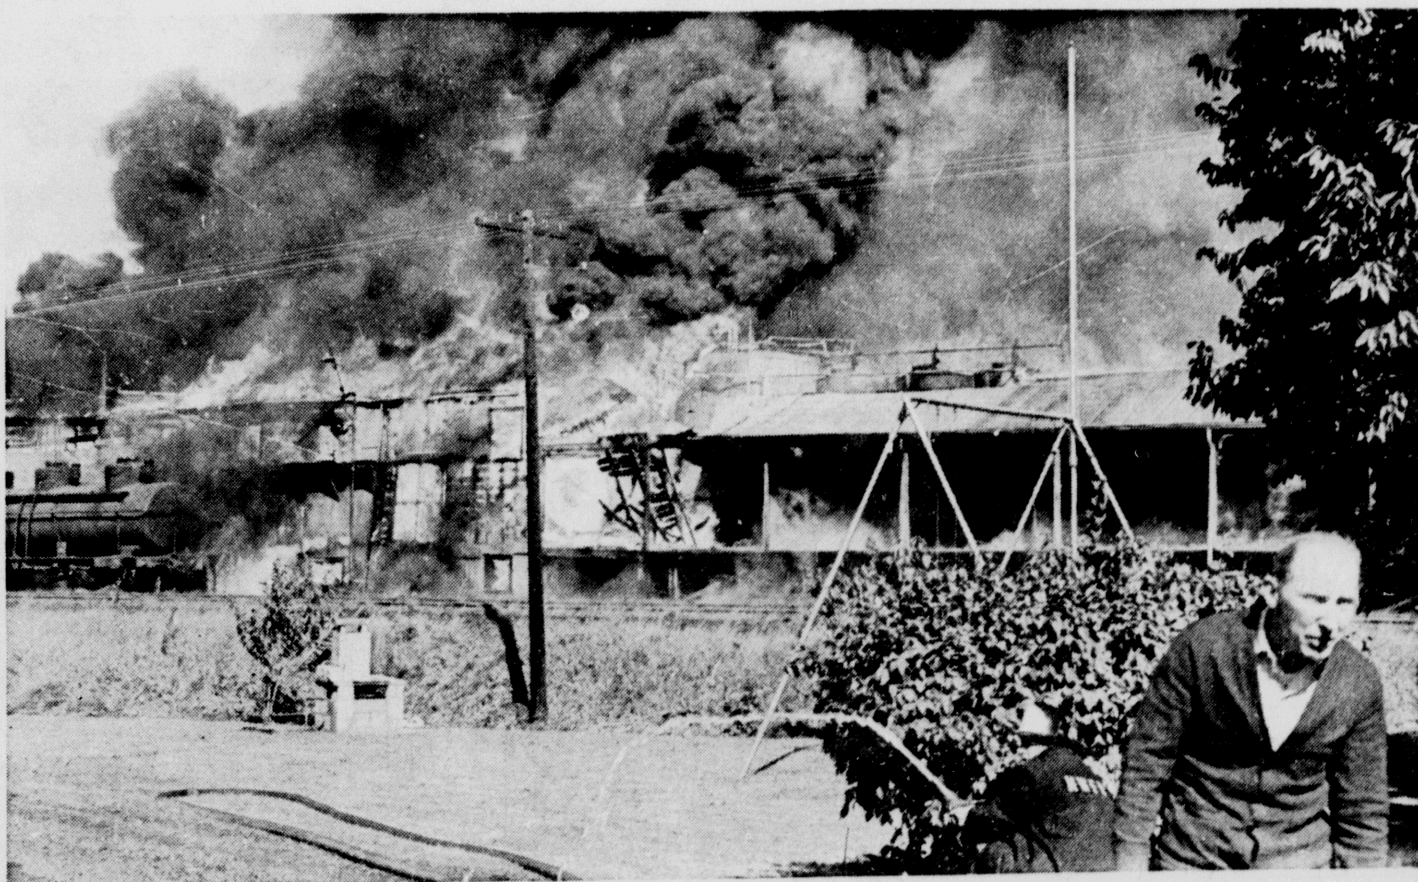

A HOT SPOT for the firemen was taken by this crew which moved constantly closer to the blaze, a small group of strong hearts with a comparatively weak stream standing between the terrific heat and the Venturatown homes behind them. Within a half hour they had worked their way to within fifty feet of the caldron.

A POWERFUL stream was poured from the Warren foam and pressure truck, but a strong wind, intensive heat, and the distance combined to greatly reduce its effectiveness.

"HEY, LIL, HAVE WE CHECKED OUR HOUSE FOR FIRE HAZARDS, LATELY?"

TROUBLE. Though the Penn Oil fire was far out of hand before any fire departments were able to swing their hose lines into action, their valiant efforts to control the blaze and to protect neighboring property were not aided by water pressure. This nozzle continually was plagued with trickles, such as is seen here against the hot setting.

EARLY SHOT. The West Penn fire here is well underway but some of the plant's outline still can be seen. A few minutes later it was blacked out by heavy smoke.

ANOTHER ANGLE. News photographers enjoyed perfect lighting for their work at the West Penn Fire. Usually these conflagrations seem to occur at night. This is taken from the bridge across Jackson run, on the three-lane.

A BOOM, and more balls of fire amidst black smoke.

FROM AFAR the Penn Oil smoke cloud is seen between fall foliage.

Know How To Save Your Life

Knowing what to do in these situations may save your life someday:

1. You are in a crowded public place when someone cries, "Fire!"
2. Your clothing suddenly catches fire!
3. You wake up in the middle of the night and smell smoke!

In the first situation: Walk, don't run, to the nearest exit.

Don't panic. Panic is a killer. Ironically, though it springs from a consuming desire to stay alive, it is apt to destroy you. Time after time it has turned relatively minor emergencies into riots in which scores of people are suffocated or trampled to death.

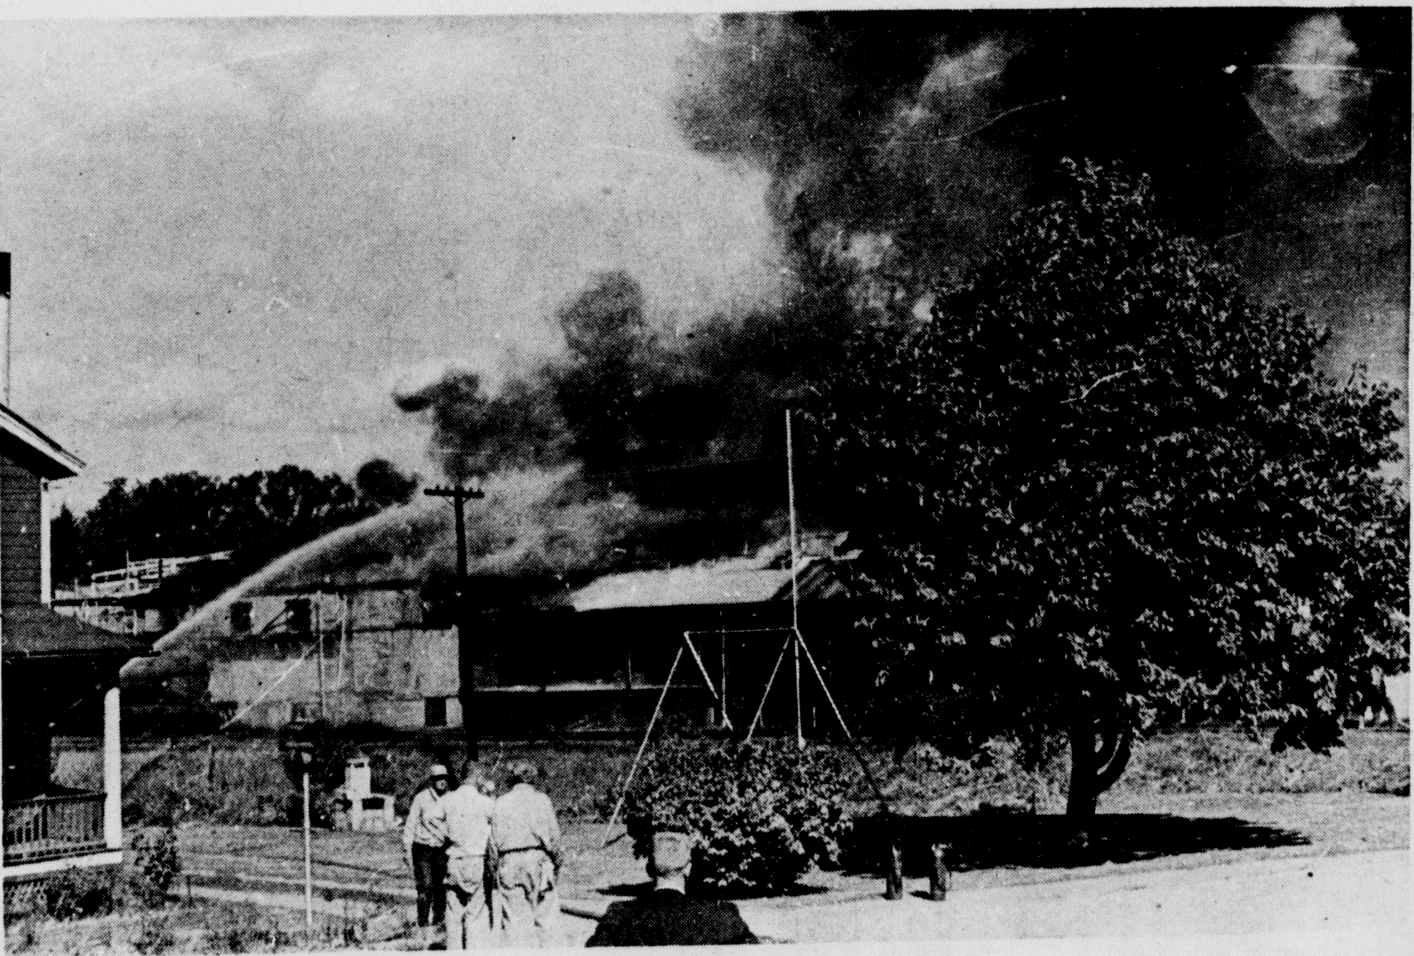

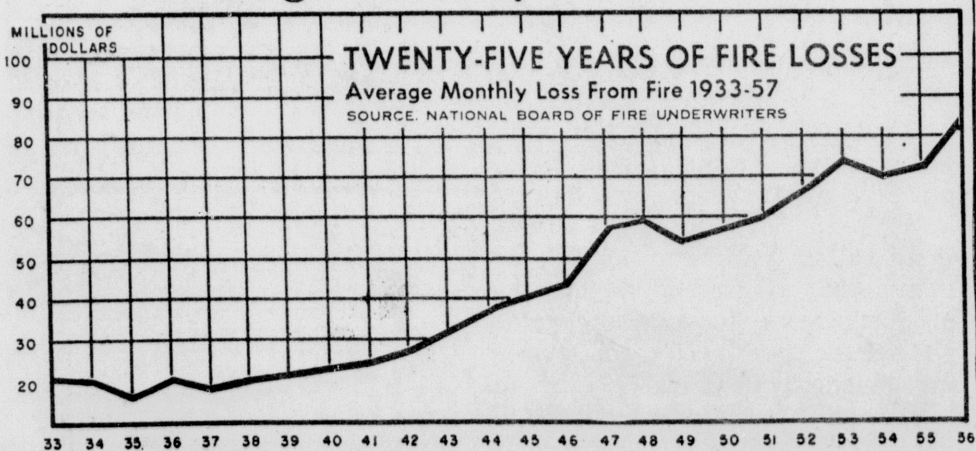

Panic is contagious. It can spread in an instant from one hysterical person to a roomful of people. The way to control it is to keep it from starting — by being prepared for emergencies.

In the second situation: If your clothes catch fire, fold your arms across your chest, drop to the floor or ground. If possible, roll up in a rug or heavy coat. Otherwise, roll over and over to smother the flames.

In the third situation: Before you open your bedroom door, put the palm of your hand against it. If the door is hot, the outer hall is filled with deadly heated gases. If not, open the door a bit, turning your head away from the opening and bracing the door with your foot. Pass your hand across the opening. If the air is cool and there is no pressure, the hall should be safe.

If fire has cut off all escape routes from the upstairs room, don't jump out of the window. You may hurt yourself needlessly. Open the window slightly and wait there for rescue. Breathe the fresh outside air. If it becomes necessary to jump, throw out your mattress to land on.

EVERYONE WAS OUT when this early picture of the West Penn blaze was taken from the west. Jack Culbertson, the superintendent, and eight employees, escaped, thanks to an early discovery of the fire by Ed Barney, driver for the Erie Trucking Company, who also made a safe escape with his vehicle. Mr. Barney said the fire seemed to be flowing across the floor.

Call Warren 3973 - R

THE JEWISH NEW YEAR season, which began with Rosh Hashana on September 26, ends this Saturday with Yom Kippur or the Day of Atonement.

On these days the Jew thinks of peace for all mankind prays for the time when all the Children of God shall join hands in Brotherhood, as it is written in the scriptures "They shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

The Ark contains the Torahs, parchment scrolls, on which are written the five books of Moses. The Tablet of Moses, with their inscription of the Ten Commandments has been the foundation of morality for the entire world. Symbolically, the Lions of Judah bear eternal vigil over the Word of the Lord, so that people can clasp hands in friendship and understanding.

The Eternal Light above the tablets originated in the ancient Temple of Jerusalem. It signifies spirit, wisdom and omnipotence of God.

In last week's edition a picture of Rabbi Berger appeared. The Talis, or prayer shawl, he was wearing represents the Tabernacle of the Lord. Its silken fringes are a reminder of God's Covenant with the Children of Israel. And the Shofar, or ram's horn he was blowing, calls the people to prayer and penitance and triumphantly proclaims the everlasting Word of God.

PUPPETS TO TEACH MATH

TO YOUNGSTERS ON KDKA-TV
An unusual new television program created to make mathematics exciting and entertaining for youngsters will debut on KDKA-TV the week of November 19.

The Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., which owns and operates five TV stations in five major cities, has combined math and marionettes in an educational film series entitled "Adventures in Number and Space" on the premise that television can inspire children to look, learn and like mathematics. Prepared with the cooperation of the Dept. of Mathematics, The Teachers College, and Columbia University, the series will utilize the talents of Bill Baird and His Marionettes.

Aimed at the junior high school level, "Adventures in Number and Space" is expected to appeal to adults, too. The nine-half-hour films will be made available free to educational TV stations and later distributed throughout the nation for classroom use. Titles of the nine programs are How Man Learned To Count, Quicker Than You Think, The Mysterious X, What's The Angle, It's All Arranged, How's Chances, Sign Language, Stretching the Imagination, and Career in Mathematics.

ERIE TOURNAMENT

Local players who placed in the past week end tournament in Erie were Dr. R. H. Israel, John Israel, Henry Hunzinger and D. L. Vetera, a team championship match in which they placed second. An open pair game on Saturday found Dr. Israel scoring third place with an out-of-town partner. E. J. Rupp and Lou Wallace, of Jamestown, finished in tenth place in the same event.

D. L. Vetera and his partner were second place winners in a North-South, East-West game on Saturday, Section A.

Section B winners locally were the Rupp-Wallace combination from Jamestown who placed second in the E-W field.

The girls are required to use fresh apples with a dough. Commercial mixes were barred.

An apple pie with a subtle almond flavor, baked by Mary Johnson, placed first in the local contest, making it possible for Miss Johnson to compete in the County contest to be held at the Pennsylvania Electric Co. in Warren, October 17. Mary Sweeney, who also baked an apple pie, placed second. Other contestants were Patti Passenger, Delores Gregory, Jeanne Garrett, Shirley Williams, Linda Lyford, Dorothy Slocum and Sandra Riggle.

The contest is sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Horticultural Association of Pennsylvania and the Appalachian Apple Service.

LOCAL TALENT WRITES CHILDREN'S OPERA

"The Thirteen Clocks", an opera based on a fairy tale by James Thurber has been written by Dr. Norman Morgan, his wife Maritza, and Mary Johnson. The music is by Mary Johnson and the three collaborated on the libretto.

The New York Times says the fanciful Thurber tale is set to catching music and is bound to become a world favorite among children operas. It is about a wicked duke who stops all the clocks in his castle and the young prince who finds a way to circumvent the nonsense.

The Times says the adults may find a moral and the children will go away laughing, and happy.

The opera will open November 9 in Hunter College assembly hall. There also will be four appearances in Newark and three in Old Greenwich.

DAY FOR RHYME

There is one hobby which seems to shrink from public attention even when done by some who are quite able. There are many among us, far more than you might suspect, who find no better way of expressing themselves or of satisfying their creative hunger than by writing verse.

Often, and probably usually, you will find such people very unwilling to share their poetic thoughts with others, especially with the public. Either they feel that their innermost feelings as expressed therein are not to be shared or they modestly doubt if their work has quality.

We often receive poetic contributions and as you see we seldom use them. This is because most of it is not much good. We have members of our own staff who can do much better without straining an iambic.

Most of us have some poetry within us. The reaction we have deep inside when we react to an experience. The effect color, or sound, or the landscape, or all of them put together, has upon us. This is your poetry base, if you can find words to say it. Maybe it never is said in any way. Maybe you hold back a tear. Maybe you laugh till your ribs are sore. Perhaps you say, "That sure is damned pretty."

Others may grab a brush and attempt to place what they have felt on canvas. There will be those who will reach for a camera. Some must have typewriter and put it into prose. And there is the one who reaches for a bottle and washes his reaction away. Or tries to.

Some not content to do it themselves, find it in the work of others. They get much out of good sculpturing, art, music, and the classics. Here and there among the whole they find that which says what they feel. Then they are made happy, or sad, and they treasure their find as though they had done it themselves.

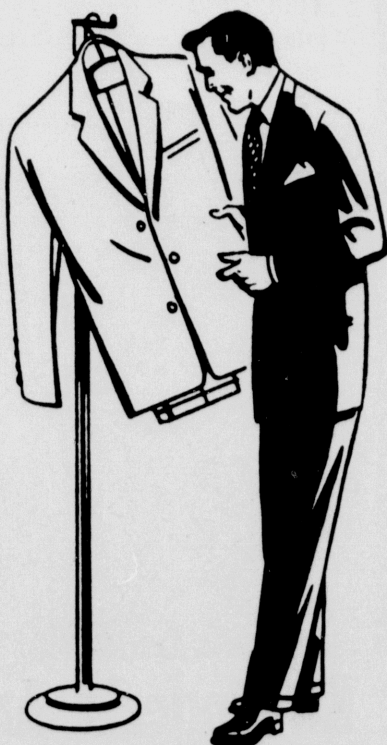

The real poet is the royalty of our fraternity. Whether his poetry comes out in flowing prose or perfect rhyme, his is a talent that leaves most of us pondering in his wake.

On October 15 it will be world poetry day. Pushing this idea very hard is Mary O'Connor, its founder, a helpless invalid from the waist down, who has turned out verse that says much of this lady who has found the beautiful to place in words despite her handicap.

We are going to print two of her poems. It may encourage others to try. At least they may encourage others to better use their many advantages for a happier perspective.

I only ask that I may see

LITTLE JOHN AND COMPANY

The merry men of Sherwood forest have many counterparts in area woodlands these days. The Warren Archery Club is making it a big week end. Saturday starts the special archery season for bucks and does, and on Sunday the Club will have its championship meet over the Lover's Lane course.

This course emulates hunting conditions, with targets that are situated as the actual game will be in various approaches. If you are not an archer, or perhaps just a very green one, this meet will provide some very fine shooting for your entertainment.

There are about seventy members in the Warren club, of which thirty are active. This year they have had shoots with Titusville, Meadville, Oil City, and Presque Isle. They also took part in the regional shoot at Sharon.

A credit to the Warren archers is the percentage of experts they have in their group. Of the fourteen experts in the western region of Pennsylvania, eight are from Warren's club.

The deer season starts at 6 a. m. Saturday for these bowmen, and lasts until October 12. Special licenses must be obtained from the county treasurer, in addition to the regular hunting licenses. Those who get their buck must fill out a big game tag, just as do the gunmen, and it must be reported to Harrisburg within five days of the kill.

All of the regular hunting laws apply, such as the 150-yard safety rule in respect to buildings. An arrow that can kill a deer can do some very mean things also to a human. They should not be fired any more promiscuously than a rifle or shotgun.

Archery hunting has increased from 5,542 bowmen in 1951 to 26,000 last year, when they brought down 224 deer. Both numbers are expected to take another jump this season.

There is another aspect to this archery business that should induce others to take part. It is conceivable that an atomic war could create a situation that would make it necessary to be dependent on primitive weapons for our existence. Isolated in a bombed out world, and with no modern conveniences, we might find it happy to know how to make and shoot a bow and arrow.

Wild thought? It can happen . . . and here.

GROUSE IMPROVEMENTS

More grouse are expected to be there for you to shoot when the season opens October 19. That hot, dry summer provided ideal conditions for hatch survival compared to the damp cold of 1956. A study is being made of the ratio between adults and young in hopes of revealing how new birds are coming along.

This kind of survey the past year has revealed too high a percentage of adult birds. The fall kill is expected to indicate a change, and a larger percentage of young birds should be among the downed game. If this is so, the kill also should be higher and of course the hunting better.

Hunters are asked to send the grouse wings and tails to Harrisburg for study. Special envelopes can be obtained for this purpose, either from your game protector or the game commission.

THE SLY, SHOWY RINGNECK COCK

This month James Kimball, director of the Minnesota Game and Fish Division, described the ringneck pheasant so cleverly his article is quoted below.

The male ringneck pheasant is the most beautiful, most sagacious, the cunningest, smartest, most unpredictable and aggravating, slyest, sneakiest, and showiest game bird in the world. He outwits hunters, confuses biologists, delights bird watchers and is admired, loved and hated by farmers. He can outrun a man and in flight he appears to be a large, easy target but one which is easier to miss than to hit. Even when shot you can't be sure he's dead until you ring off his head and hide it! He has been the ruination of many a bird dog but you really need a good dog to hunt him successfully.

His complicated behavior pattern has been acquired through countless generations of matching wits with man and his other predators. He has been hunted, netted and trapped for thousands of years in Asia, Europe and America.

After doing research on pheasants for ten years in Nebraska, Minnesota, and South Dakota I concluded that the pheasants had learned more about me than I had about them. The one thing we know for sure about pheasants is this: Give them the proper habitat and they will flourish and multiply with apparent disregard for predators, including man and his twelve gauge.

Two weeks ago we talked about this at the (Minnesota) gathering of game managers, warden supervisors, researchers, etc. who took part in setting the hunting seasons. Well, not one of them expressed any concern over the possibility of over-shooting pheasants. As long as we shoot cocks only there is no chance of us over-shooting. Now, as if that statement wouldn't bring enough disagreement, let's jump in a bit deeper with this one. We can probably increase pheasant abundance by shooting MORE cocks.

To understand this we must again realize that the abundance of all species, including pheasants, is determined by the carrying capacity of the range. The farmer knows that his pasture will support a certain number of cows - more if the grass and water are good, less if not so good. The same is true for pheasants. Each section of land will support only a given number and whether that number is large or small depends on the nesting cover, brood cover, food, winter cover, etc.

Let us assume that a couple sections of land have a winter carrying capacity of 100 pheasants. If we did no fall shooting we might start the winter with about equal numbers of cocks and hens, say about 100 of each. But the carrying capacity of the winter range is only 100, so in spring we will have, on the average, about 50 cocks and 50 hens. These 50 hens mean a potential of 50 nests and broods.

Now let's try the other extreme and shoot 90% of the cocks. That means we have 10 hens for each cock so in the spring we will have, not 50 cocks and 50 hens but 10 cocks and 90 hens. This gives us an increase of 40 potential nests and broods which means an 80% increase in potential production. And production is what counts because 70% to 90% of the birds we shoot each fall are young. That is, they were hatched that spring.

Of course, we have used extreme examples here to illustrate the point, and the point is that removing the cocks provides more living space and food for the 'girls', and in reproduction, they are all that count - almost.

In case you are worried about egg fertility - relax. In parts of Michigan they do shoot 90% of the cocks and egg fertility remains as high as in the Dakotas where less than half of the males may be taken. This is easier to understand when you know that hen pheasants lay fertile eggs for a period of 22 days after a single mating.

TROUBLESOME. This mite is Sampson. He is about to score his first touchdown against Warren in the Homecoming game which ended, 39 to 12, favor the Rockets. The right side of Warren's line looked like a through highway too much of the afternoon.

TWENTY YARDS and a first down for Warren were scored by Jack Suppa (39) in this first half action of Saturday's game with Titusville.

BULLING THROUGH the Warren right wall for Titusville's second score is Dewey (we guess).

THERE GOES Dewey, or Olsen, or Allen. And he scores another for Titusville, around Warren's right end. They also scored on a pass to Warren's right side. But the camera was tired....and far away.

LIKE AN ARROW in its flight. That's Jack Suppa going a big share of the football field for a Warren score. He was a long way off for the camera, but you can't let events of the football field for a Warren like this go unrecorded.
